

Dear Sir/Madam:

I have only subscribed to XM Satellite Radio for 3 months, but it is the freshest contribution to communication in years. In the small town I live in currently I am now able to stay abreast of many different types of music, as well as information.

When traveling to large cities I intend to check out the weather/traffic information because XM Radio plays non-stop current information. This doesn't happen in any big city of which I know. Of course there is weather/traffic information on commercial radio, but aired at the station's discretion. Usually if you hear about a traffic accident on the commercial radio the information is old.

I do not believe folks are subscribing to XM Radio because of weather/traffic information, but this is a nice added convenience for a market that is sorely lacking.
